Ye Springtime
Gossip
By A. B. C.

YESTERDAY MORNING
I WENT out
TO SEE the
GREAT GOLF match—
CHICK EVANS and
OUR OWN Freddie McLeod
HAD A wonderful
"MIDIRON DUEL"
WITH HAGAN and Barnes.
I WAS all excited
AND GOT up early
AND POLISHED up my Ford
—SO WHEN I drove in
AT COLUMBIA
THEY WERE all glad
THEY ASKED us to come.
IT SURE was some match,
AND ALL the funds
WENT TO the Red Cross.
AND RUTHIE (my wife)
WENT WITH me,
AND IT was great fun.
AND NOW I've reached
THE END of my column
AND HAVEN'T said
A WORD of advertising
FOR THE firm of
D. J. KAUFMAN.

I THANK YOU.

QUICK TOUR FOR QUARTET.

Twenty concerts at eight different military camps in one week is the proud record today of the National Quartet, of Washington, which has been touring the cantonments under the direction of the National War Work Council.

The coming week's program includes entertainments at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va., where concerts will be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. The quartet is composed of Miss Elizabeth S. Maxwell, soprano; Miss Lillian Chenoweth, contralto; W. E. Braithwaite, tenor; Harry M. Forker, bass, with Miss Ethel Garrett Johnston, pianist.

DRAFT MEN TO BE TRAINED IN MANY SCHOOLS

13,630 Called for Technical Instruction, Including 1,259 Colored.

A "school call" for 13,630 draft men qualified for general military service was issued by Provost Marshal General Crowder last night. Of the total number, 1,259 are colored, to be furnished by five States. Thirty-five States altogether are called upon to contribute to the full quota.

Voluntary inductions for this call will be permitted until June 21. If the call has not been filled by that date, each State will be required to complete its quota by the regular draft process.

Only men who have been graduated from grammar schools are eligible. Special courses at various educational institutions throughout the country will be given these men to train them for technical service in the army. Movement to the schools will begin on July 1.

Imprisons His Mate Till
Baby Birds Are Developed

Special Staff Dispatch.
New York, June 15.—Putting his wife in prison for six or eight weeks until her baby birds are well developed is the curious habit of one of the strangest birds in existence today—the African hornbill, so called because of its large, horny bill.

The American Museum of Natural History has just put on exhibition a new group of these curious creatures to illustrate this remarkable nesting habit.

When the female hornbill is ready to lay her eggs she and her mate select a cavity of suitable size in the trunk or large limb of a tree, 60 to 120 feet above the ground, the nest being either in the main stem or on the lower side of a branch away from neighboring boughs or vines, which makes it difficult of access to enemies. Into this lofty retreat the female enters. The male then proceeds to wall up the entrance with mud, assisted by the female from the inside. They leave only a narrow slit through which the tip of the female's bill may be thrust to receive the food passed in by the male.

In feeding his family the male hornbill clings to the tree much as woodpeckers do, using his tail, which has a curious hinge, as a support.

The female stays in the queer nest for from six to eight weeks. In these close quarters the two, three or four white eggs are laid and hatched and the young cared for until they are nearly or quite fledged. Then the mud barrier is broken down, and the mother and her offspring set free. During all their imprisonment the father has carried food to them, and the mother and young emerge well fed and fat, although the father is likely to be quite thin as a result of unusual activities.

The above group shows a mother and one young bird waited up inside their strange nest, with the father bird at the narrow opening in the mud wall, where he has just passed in food to his family.

This extraordinary precaution of imprisoning the female is necessary to protect the young, which are particularly helpless. They are born blind and remain so until after the feathers have begun to appear two weeks or more after birth.

Two New D. C. Guard Officers.
Brig. Gen. Richard D. Simms, commanding the District National Guard, yesterday announced the appointment of two more officers in the District National Guard. They are Lieut. Horace Dulin, to command Company A, Fifth Regiment, N. G. D. C., and Lieut. Ernest H. Coolidge, assigned to duty in connection with the adjutant general's office of the District Militia. Both were enlisted men.

RUSSIAN FORCE
STILL FIGHTING
HARD IN FRANCE

Work of Volunteer Legion Sign of Loyalty of Thinking Class.

Although their mother country has signed a peace pact with the Germans, the Russian legion, recruited in France last summer when Russian regulars were landed at Marseilles, have not laid down their arms. That the legion, which is known to be at least 4,000 strong, has remained steadfast and has been entrusted with duty at important points was disclosed yesterday for the first time when an excerpt from a French army general order, praising the work of the Russians, was made public by the Russian embassy here.

The excerpt reads:
"The First Battalion of the Russian legion on April 26, 1918, delivered an attack with spirited impetuosity and magnificent disdain to death; held the conquered position notwithstanding the continuous counter-attacks and bombardment to the highest admiration of all."

The order is signed by Gen. Daugon, commander of the division of which the battalion was a part.

The fighting of April 26 was in the salient driven by the Germans toward Hazeubrouck, in an effort to break the British line and force a passage to the Channel.

Russians Here Are Pleased.
The announcement of the attitude of the Russian legion is considered highly important here as it is known that the personnel of the organization is of a high order, the majority of its members being young men of the better class who were being educated in France or whose parents were living in France.

Prominent Russians here, who are known to favor action by the allies looking to military intervention in Siberia, expressed satisfaction in the news that their countrymen were continuing the battle against German aggression. It was also said that in the event that allied intervention was carried out by the allies in Siberia there would be little doubt that the Russian legion would volunteer to aid in organizing the patriots of Siberia.

METALS USE FOR OTHER THAN WAR, IS WRONG

Government control of iron and steel will be exercised in behalf of the industries and activities essential to winning the war, according to a letter written by George Day, chief of oil supplies of the Food Administration, to A. C. Bedford, chairman of the National Petroleum War Service Committee.

Mr. Day states that every pound of steel or iron diverted from the construction of ships, airplanes and munitions has a retarding effect upon the completion of the government's war program, and would be an unpatriotic use of these materials.

Mr. Day's letter was an effort to change the impression created in the minds of consumers that the action of the War Trade Board in taking over these commodities would curtail the supply.

What to Plant in July.
The Garden Editor of the Woman's Home Companion says: "Late cabbage plants are never set out until July; so it is almost summer's hottest period. No early time for these. Early corn may be planted now, again the first of July and still once more toward the end of the month—for corn is a hot weather plant, and is therefore stimulated into extraordinary activity by time for these. Early corn may be planted now, again the first of July and still once more toward the end of the month—for corn is a hot weather plant, and is therefore stimulated into extraordinary activity by variety is more delicious nor more prolific than the Golden Bantam, and this has the added advantage of being so much less rank in growth that the rows may go closer together than those of late kinds."

LANE OPENS EXHIBIT IN 'FRISCO ON JULY 7
Big Government War Display Joins With "Ad" Clubs.

A $50,000 war exposition will be given by the government in San Francisco, July 7 to 11, according to announcement yesterday.

It is a part of the program of the United States to advertise the war in America, and will be taken to other cities.

Arthur Bennett, of the Committee on Public Information, is present in San Francisco in charge of the work. He is assisted by Lieut. Martin, who represents the Canadian government. The war exposition and the fourteenth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, will run conjointly.

Secretary of the Interior Department Lane, will address the big inspirational war meeting on the first day.

War policies, and the part advertising and business men must take in stabilizing conditions back of the lines and in financing the war will be discussed at the convention.

Among the speakers will be Charles M. Schwab, and Bainbridge Colby of the Shipping Board; Earl Reading, and Maj. Gen. Briffers, of England; Stephens Lausanne, of France; George Creel, chairman of the Committee on Public Information; Gerrit Fort, of the Railroad Administration; Earl D. Babst, president of the Sugar Refining Company; Truman A. Dewese, advertising manager of the Shredded Wheat Company, and representatives of government departments.
